

ILLUSTRATED

Evening Ledger

SATURDAY
May 27, 1916

SUNDRY SIDELIGHTS ON THE VARIED NEWS OF THE DAY AS RECORDED BY THE GAMERA MAN

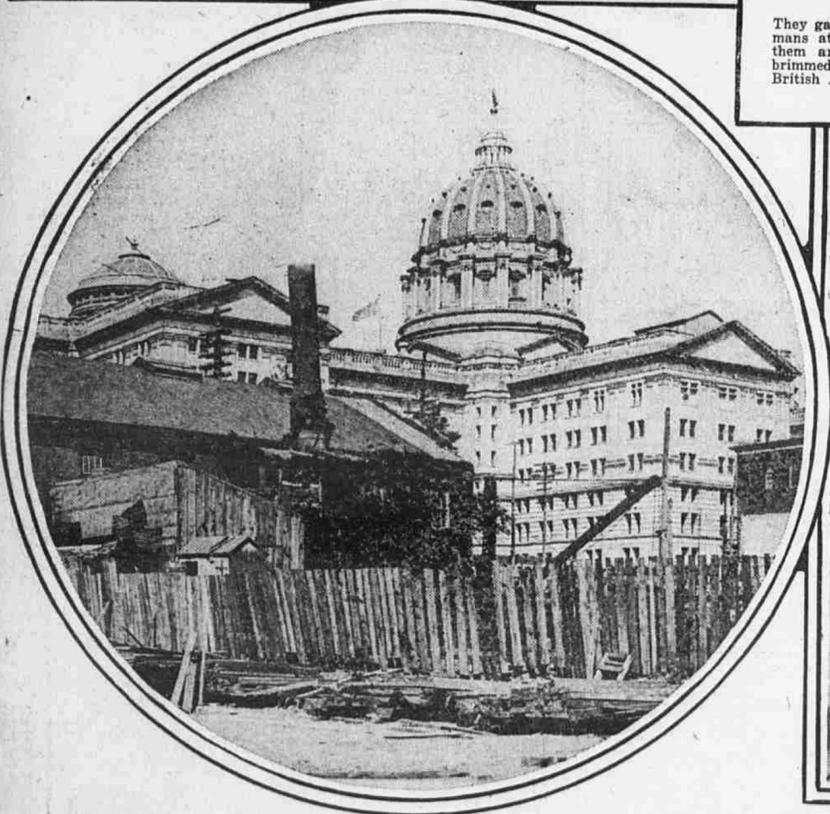

Photo by Thompson.
NORTHUMBERLAND FUSILIERS REJOICE

They gained a decision over the Germans at Mount St. Eloi. Some of them are wearing the new broad-brimmed steel helmets adopted by the British Army, following the example of the French.

Photo by International Film Service.
AUSTRIAN PRISONERS ARE TAGGED AS THEY COME IN
Taking a leaf from Germany's efficiency book, Italy has solved the problem of handling her prisoners by attaching a tag to each. This gives the man's name and regiment, native town and camp to which he is to be sent. Confusion was caused at first by inability to understand the many dialects of Austria's soldiery.

PENNSYLVANIA'S CAPITOL FROM THE SOUTHEAST
However, this blot is to be removed if the plans for the Capitol Extension Park at Harrisburg go through. There are enough horrors close to our public buildings as it is.

Photo by International Film Service.
CALIFORNIA ENTHUSIASTIC OVER ITS WOMEN WATER POLOISTS
Here is chronicled a block play in the semifinals played at Venice, Cal. The winning team will later go to San Diego to compete for the national championship. All the players are young women.

Photo by Staff Photographer.
BESIDE ONE OF THE BUSY BOOTHS AT MERION'S PETE CHAMPETRE
Everything from jelly to books is on sale at the fair being held on the grounds of Merion convent for the benefit of the Mater Misericordiae Hospital.

Photo by Underwood & Underwood.
"SPIRIT OF NEWARK" HOVERS OVER THE JERSEY CITY'S CELEBRATION
Mrs. Chester F. Williams was suspended 100 feet above Broad street, Newark, while she threw little city flags on the crowds below, as a part of the 250th anniversary observance.